Nydia Remolina is an Assistant Professor of Law at the Singapore Management University (SMU) Yong Pung How School of Law. She also serves as the Head of Industry Relations and Fintech Track Lead at SMU's Centre for AI and Data Governance, and is a member of the Swiss Fintech Innovation Lab at the University of Zurich. Her areas of research include financial regulation, capital markets, banking law, fintech, and AI governance. She has also taught at institutions across the United States, Asia, Europe, and Latin America. Nydia has been an instructor for the Global Certificate Program jointly organized by Harvard Law School and the International Organization of Securities Commissions (IOSCO), and currently, she is an instructor for the Cambridge Open Banking & Finance for Regulators course offered by the Cambridge Centre for Alternative Finance at the University of Cambridge. Prior to her role at SMU, she practiced law at Sullivan & Cromwell LLP in New York and served as Manager of Regulation and Policy Affairs at a major financial conglomerate in Latin America for more than ten years. Her expertise was further shaped by her role as a Senior Advisor to the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), where she engaged with policy issues related to financial regulation.

Her research has been cited in internationally recognised outlets such as Forbes and The New York Times, and featured on platforms including the Harvard Law School Forum on Corporate Governance, Columbia Law School Blue Sky Blog, Oxford Business Law Blog, University of Pennsylvania's Regulatory Review, and the Machine Lawyering Blog of the Chinese University of Hong Kong. Nydia has been invited to speak at international forums organised by institutions such as the International Monetary Fund (IMF), the United States Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), the Monetary Authority of Singapore (MAS), the Federation of Latin American Banks (Felaban), the Institute of International Finance (IIF), and the Asian Development Bank, among others. Nydia holds a Master of the Science of Law from Stanford University and is completing her PhD at the University of Zurich.
